Horace and Today

SEVERAL conflicts, but especially Italy, are preparing to celebrate the bimillenary of the Roman poet Horace. Like Charles Lamb, Horace was not the greatest poet who ever lived, but he is perhaps the most beloved.

His bonhomie has been constant and has kept the test of time.

Horace's humanity has been quite unlike that of Lucretius, for example, who was also a Roman poet. He was the poet of the aristocracy of his day, but he was also a philosopher and a prophet. He was the poet of the rich and of the powerful, but he was also the poet of the poor. He was the poet of the gay and of the sad, of the old and of the young, of the married and of the single. He was the poet of the city and of the country. He was the poet of the Roman Empire and of the Roman Republic. He was the poet of the past and of the present. He was the poet of the world and of Rome. He was the poet of the pagan and of the Christian. He was the poet of the world would do well to ponder.

Time is certainly not to be regretted, but there is much in the wisdom of Horace and especially in the philosophy of his life which we could more profitably learn today than we do. He was the poet of the golden mean, the golden mediocrity, the golden moderation. Surely it should be possible to have progress without revolution, to have reform without violence, to have change without chaos. There is no lesson which humanity today needs more than the lesson of moderation. Surely it should be possible to have progress without violence, to have reform without chaos, to have change without revolution.

Exposure of the folly of this tendency to go to extremes is a principal purpose of Horace's song. It is the kind of purpose which the progress of the world would be all the better for following.

Joy at Eastertide

IN THE Christian calendar there is no time for more joyful celebration than Eastertide. The resurrection of Jesus from the dead and his ascension to the Father are the crowning events of the Christian religion. Without them there would be no Christianity. Without them there would be no Christian Church. Without them there would be no Christian civilization. Without them there would be no Christian hope. Without them there would be no Christian joy.

Easter, therefore, is rightly a time for thanksgiving of the heart and for praise of the lips. It is rightly a time for the expression of joyous thankfulness. Easter, therefore, is the time when we should be most grateful for the gift of eternal life. Easter is the time when we should be most joyful in the hope of immortality.

It is fitting that the Christian celebration of Eastertide should be a season of joy. It is fitting that it should be a season of thanksgiving. It is fitting that it should be a season of praise. It is fitting that it should be a season of hope. It is fitting that it should be a season of immortality.

Eastertide is a season which has been celebrated by Christians for many centuries. It is a season which has been celebrated by Christians in many countries. It is a season which has been celebrated by Christians in many languages. It is a season which has been celebrated by Christians in many ways. It is a season which has been celebrated by Christians in many hearts.

Today the spire clothes of the South are bedecked with the white blossoms of the dogwood, and the hillsides of the North are covered with the pink blossoms of the arbutus. Today the birds are singing their sweetest songs, and the flowers are giving forth their rarest perfumes. Today the sun is shining its brightest, and the moon is casting its softest rays. Today the stars are twinkling their merriest, and the heavens are displaying their most glorious splendor. Today the earth is clothed in its most beautiful garments, and the sea is decked with its most precious jewels. Today the whole world is rejoicing, and all nature is singing.

Japan has suggested to the United States that a tripartite agreement between Great Britain, the United States and Japan be made to include Russia, if possible. Japan's suggestion has been coupled with Great Britain's suggestion that a conference be held to discuss naval limitation. Both these suggestions are looked upon favorably by a commercialism of the United States. Europe Eases Insecurity Morass

Alfredo Has Systems of One Kind or Another Providing for Unemployment Insurance and for Retirement Pay—Began Seventy Years Ago to Prepare—Methods Are Found Generally Academic

GENEVA—Europe has already nearly a century's experience in governmental methods of dealing with unemployment and old age pensions. Many systems have been tried, and many are in force today. Every country has its own problem, and its own method of solving it. Some countries have had to meet the problem of unemployment on a huge scale, others only on a small one.

Methods are different. Relief, insurance, or a combination of both, is used. Sometimes the state is called upon to bear the whole burden, sometimes it is divided between the state and the employer, sometimes between the state, the employer, and the employee. Sometimes the state is the only agency, sometimes it is only one of several.

The purpose of this article is to describe briefly the unemployment and old age pension systems of the principal countries of Europe, and to point out the differences between them. It is based on the latest information available to the International Labor Office, and attempts to bring it up to date.

The subject is one which has been specially studied by the International Labor Office, and a series of reports on the ways and means of dealing with unemployment has been published. The latest of these reports, published in 1931, is a volume of 400 pages, containing a detailed description of the unemployment insurance and relief systems in force in the countries of Europe, and in the United States, which in the year 1929 had a total population of 121,000,000 persons. Another volume, published in 1930, contains a detailed description of the old age pension systems in force in the countries of Europe, and in the United States, which in the year 1929 had a total population of 121,000,000 persons.

Unemployment insurance is one of the most important of the social services, and it is the one which has been developed most rapidly in recent years. It is also the one which has been most widely discussed, and which has given rise to the greatest controversy. Many people believe that it is the duty of the state to provide work for all those who are willing to work, but unable to find employment. Others believe that it is the duty of the employer to provide work for his employees, and that the state should not interfere in the matter. Still others believe that it is the duty of the employee to provide for himself, and that neither the state nor the employer should be responsible for his unemployment.

Unemployment insurance is one of the most important of the social services, and it is

Lee Is Paid Honor

For His Activity In Episcopal Church

Special to The Christian Science Monitor

SAN ANTONIO, Texas—The Rt. Rev. E. Lee, commander-in-chief of the Confederate army, helped to found the Episcopal Church in Texas and was its first bishop, according to Bishop Capers, who delivered the memorial address at the unveiling of a bronze statue of Lee in Travis Park (Texas and Soledad Sts.). The statue, which is the work of Pompeo Coppini, was given by the Daughters of the Confederacy and the Episcopal Church of San Antonio.

Among the soldiers the most distinguished were Gen. Joseph E. Johnston, Gen. Simon B. Buckner, Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, Gen. Thomas L. Rosser, Gen. Stephen D. Lee, Gen. Wade Hampton, Gen. Joseph Wheeler, Gen. Edward Porter Alexander, Gen. Walter Taylor, Gen. Thomas M. Logan, Gen. Basil W. Duke, Gen. Bennett H. Young, Gen. Clement A. Evans, Gen. Marcus J. Wright, Gen. Felix H. Republicans Making Campaign Issue of Present Expenditures—States Told to Meet Quotas

Special from The Christian Science Monitor Bureau

WASHINGTON, April 30—Politics and relief are not going to be mixed in the administration of relief funds if the President has his way. This was made plain today by Harry L. Hopkins, Federal relief administrator, who was promoted from assistant administrator to administrator to succeed Gen. Frank T. Hines, who resigned to become vice chairman of the Veterans Administration.

Mr. Hopkins announced that he would not be a candidate for political office, and that he would devote himself entirely to relief work. He said that he had no intention of resigning to enter politics.

Mr. Hopkins announced that he would continue the present policy of the Federal Emergency Relief Administration of refusing relief funds to any State which attempts to use relief workers for political purposes.

Mr. Hopkins said that he would not be influenced by political pressure from Democrats or Republicans in the administration of relief funds

Coach Leader Is Smiling At Crew Outlook

Ivy Mentor Rates All Questionable Regarding Vale Men

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 30 (AP)—As usual, Ed Leader, Yale's pilot, is smiling—and following at the Elis, which looks like a winning crew—but he's not doing any boasting.

Except to say "the varsity and junior varsity boats are about even, excepting that the varsity has a little more power and the junior varsity more experience," Leader refuses to commit himself. He will take more work before a winning combination is selected.

Yale's varsity boat is composed of Captain Bill Hamilton, bow; Bill Bowen, No. 2; Bill Hall, No. 3; Bill Hall, No. 4; Bill Hall, No. 5; Bill Hall, No. 6; Bill Hall, No. 7, and Bill Hall, stroke. Coxswain Bill Hall will be the only member of the boat to row in the same position in the shell as he did last year.

Leader has been handicapped by the loss of Bill Hall, stroke, and Bill Hall, coxswain, who graduated last June. Bill Hall was the mainstay of the boat last year, and Leader has had to develop a stroke and coxswain to replace him.

Yale's junior varsity boat is composed of Bill Hall, bow; Bill Hall

Easter: A State of Mind

Written for The Christian Science Monitor

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE points to the world an entirely spiritual interpretation of the Bible, thus revealing its great verities. To such a one Easter is not a day of the year, but every day. Easter is not a day to be observed, but a state of mind to be attained. Easter is not a day to be remembered, but a day to be lived. Easter is not a day to be celebrated, but a day to be demonstrated.

Easter is the time when we should be most conscious of the power of Christ's resurrection. Christ's resurrection is the most tremendous fact in the history of the world. It is the fact which proves the reality of Christianity. It is the fact which proves the truth of Christian Science. It is the fact which proves the truth of the Bible. It is the fact which proves the truth of God. It is the fact which proves the truth of life. It is the fact which proves the truth of immortality. It is the fact which proves the truth of eternity. It is the fact which proves the truth of heaven. It is the fact which proves the truth of all things.

Christ's resurrection is the most tremendous fact in the history of the world because it is the most tremendous fact in the history of God. It is the most tremendous fact in the history of God because it is the most tremendous fact in the history of life. It is the most tremendous fact in the history of life because it is the most tremendous fact in the history of immortality. It is the most tremendous fact in the history of eternity. It is the most tremendous fact in the history of heaven. It is the most tremendous fact in the history of all things.

Boys and girls who like a story packed with adventure and excitement have a treat in store for them during the next few weeks in the Junior Page of The Christian Science Monitor weekly a new serial story by Miss Elizabeth Cogswell called

"The Indians Came"

Miss Cogswell, author of "The Cat Who Went to Heaven," and "Mary Poppins," is one of the most distinguished writers for young people in the United States. In this first modern story she tells how a young Indian girl who was captured by the Indians and won be succeeded by one we captured by the Indians and won be succeeded in adapting herself to their life and customs. Until she was ransomed. Not only is the story an exciting tale, but it also gives good hints and ideas to authentic picture of Indian life and customs of that day. The tale will be illustrated by Miss Helen Sewell, a well known illustrator of books for children.

In order to be certain of not missing an installment of "The Indians Came," one should subscribe to the Monitor beginning with the first story.

The copper restriction agreement between the United States and Canada, domestic copper producers, and the Rhodesian producers, to which the Belgian Congo is a party, has been approved by the Governments of the United States, Canada, Rhodesia, and Belgium, and will become effective on May 1. The agreement is for a period of three years, and is designed to maintain the price of copper at a reasonable level, and to prevent the violent fluctuations which have been a feature of the copper market in the past. The agreement is not expected to have any effect on the price of copper in the immediate future, as the price is already above the minimum fixed by the agreement.

The agreement provides for the limitation of the production of copper by the countries concerned, and for the allocation of quotas to the individual producers. The quotas are based on the production of the years 1929 to 1932, inclusive, with certain modifications. The United States quota is 53 per cent of the total production of the countries concerned, Canada's quota is 20 per cent, Rhodesia's 15 per cent, and the Belgian Congo's 12 per cent. The quotas may be increased or decreased by the Copper Export Association, which is to be established to administer the agreement, by a majority vote of the representatives of the countries concerned. The Association is also empowered to fix the price of copper, and to impose penalties on producers who exceed their quotas.

The agreement is to be submitted to the Governments of the countries concerned for ratification, and it is expected that it will be ratified by all of them. It is understood that the United States Government has already given its approval to the agreement, and that the Canadian Government will also ratify it. The Belgian Government has also given its approval to the agreement, but it will not be ratified by the Belgian Parliament until the Rhodesian Government has given its assurance that it will ratify the agreement. The Rhodesian Government has not yet given its assurance, but it is believed that it will do so.

The agreement is the result of negotiations which have been in progress for some time between the United States, Canadian, Rhodesian, and Belgian copper producers. The United States Government has been anxious to see the copper industry stabilized, and the Canadian Government has also been anxious to see the price of copper raised to a profitable level. The Rhodesian and Belgian producers have been willing to enter into an agreement to restrict production, provided that the United States and Canada would do the same. The agreement is the result of these negotiations.

The agreement is to be submitted to the Governments of the countries concerned for ratification on the assumption that the United States will ratify it before the end of April. It is expected that the agreement will be ratified by all of the countries concerned before the end of May, and that it will come into force on June 1. It is expected that the agreement will be ratified by all of the countries concerned before the end of May, and that it will come into force on June 1. WASHINGTON, April 30—The Association of American Railroads announces that members of the Association have voted to increase freight rates 15 per cent on all traffic except coal, coke, sand, gravel, and stone, effective May 16. The increase will apply to the entire United States except the territory south of the Ohio River and east of the Mississippi River, and will affect approximately 75 per cent of the railroad traffic in the country.

The increase is expected to add $360,000,000 annually to the railroads' revenues, and will be the first general increase in freight rates since 1920. The last general increase was 15 per cent, and was granted in 1931. Since then there have been a number of reductions in rates on specific commodities, and the average rate per ton mile has declined from 1.27 cents in 1929 to 1.03 cents in 1932.

The railroads have been seeking the increase for some time, and have been encouraged by the fact that the Interstate Commerce Commission has been considering the matter for several months. The Commission has been holding hearings on the proposed increase, and has been receiving testimony from railroad executives, shippers, and other interested parties. The Commission has been under pressure from the railroads to grant the increase, and has been under pressure from the shippers to deny it. VICTORIA, B. C., April 30—The steady cattle industry of British Columbia, possible now through the recent reconstruction of the Columbia Valley irrigation project, is responsible to a large degree for the increase in the value of agricultural products in the province during 1932, according to the annual report of the Department of Agriculture, issued today.

Cattle and hogs, dairy products, and fruit are the principal items in the increase of agricultural products, the report shows. The value of cattle and hogs sold in 1932 was $1,500,000, as compared with $1,000,000 in 1931. Dairy products increased from $2,000,000 to $2,500,000, and fruit from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000.

Irrigation of the Columbia Valley project has made it possible to grow alfalfa and other feed crops, and has made it possible to carry more cattle through the winter. Before the irrigation project was completed, cattle had to be shipped out of the valley in the fall, as there was not enough feed to carry them through the winter.
